

A. Christine Bretz, CPA

Christine provides accounting and tax strategies for small businesses and their owners. She has over 25 years in public accounting with emphasis on taxation for various business entities as well as estates/trusts and individuals. Christine also works closely with divorcing couples to help them understand the tax and financial consequences of the process. She is trained in collaborative divorce to enable her to function as a financial neutral in such cases.

Christine frequently speaks to groups on topics such as tax planning for those in transition, understanding financial statements, and new tax law changes affecting the banking industry.

Christine is a graduate of Dickinson College and began her public accounting career in Pennsylvania with an international public accounting firm. She is a founding member of the Premier Chapter of BNI and currently serves as Finance Chair of The Center for Principled Family Advocacy. She also is a member of John Carroll University Entrepreneurs Association, Women Advancing Women and serves as a Director of the Plymouth Church Foundation.
